

Voices of Alumni

On 14th of November 2020, Industrial Physics Student Society (IPHYSS) has conducted a knowledge-sharing program called “Voices of Alumni” in collaboration with Industrial Physics alumni. A total of 210 participants were involved in this program consisting of lecturers from the Faculty of Applied Sciences (FSG), Industrial Physics undergraduate students, the undergraduate students of the Faculty of Applied Sciences (FSG), the program committee members and the alumni of Industrial Physics. This program was conducted through two online platforms which are Google Meet and YouTube. The objectives of this program are for the students to gain an insight on job opportunities in the current job market that are focused on Industrial Physics course and to assist students with an early preparation for the working environment so that they would fit the job marketability. This program has generated a platform for the students and alumni to form a network of relationships for professional or social use.
